Philosophy Optional Linkage

No strong Philosophy Optional linkage identified for this current affair. Do not force an artificial connection.

Revision Notes

- Remember the base year: 2022-23.
- Use real GDP for actual growth, not nominal GDP.
- A strong answer should mention both production and expenditure side signals.

Philosophy Optional Mini-Teaching

- Environmental ethics says nature is not just a resource bank; it also has moral significance.
- Intergenerational justice asks whether present choices unfairly damage the life chances of future people.
- The forum can be used as a clean illustration of ethical responsibility in climate governance.
- One answer line: 'Climate resilience is not merely a technical goal; it is an ethical commitment to protect vulnerable communities and future generations.'
- Caution: the philosophical linkage is illustrative, not a direct citation from the release.

Revision Notes

- The forum is about policy dialogue and climate resilience, not a legal treaty.
- Use it to talk about adaptation, not only emissions reduction.
- The Philosophy Optional hook is environmental ethics and intergenerational justice.

Current Affair 7: NBA disburses ABS funds for biodiversity conservation

Philosophy Optional Mini-Teaching

- Distributive justice asks how benefits and burdens should be shared fairly.
- ABS is a practical example because it links resource use with fair sharing of gains.
- Environmental ethics adds the idea that biodiversity has moral worth, not just commercial worth.
- One answer line: 'Access and benefit sharing is an institutional expression of distributive justice in environmental governance.'
- Caution: keep the link anchored to justice and stewardship; do not over-philosophise the legal mechanism.

Revision Notes

- ABS links biodiversity use with fair benefit sharing.
- NBA is a conservation governance body, not just a fund-disbursing office.
- Section 32 and the role of local biodiversity institutions are the high-value facts to remember.
